My Dearest:-

There is nothing, that I can do, that I'd rather do than write to you tonight. eh, if I could write a decent letter - I'd enjoy it more. As I wrote this a.m.

I did not get home until Sunday P.M. and the riding in the cold so much has chapped my lips and face worse than I ever knew them. My <sup>upper</sup> lip feels like it was bee-stung, and both are as rough as "shucks". Would not be very nice kissing material, maybe, that the reason you have not come yet. Is it?

Dearest, I've enjoyed reading some of my <sup>love</sup> letters tonight - Dashing do you suppose you will be able to keep all those promises you have made me already? and I was over to Sisters today and picked up Denis' little Guide which tells of that other promise you are to make. ~~etc~~ But according to that I have to promise to obey.

Darling, I must see you again, at this home, before the 13th. for there are lots we have not decided on. Oh I wish this was the fourteenth now, instead of the first.

I wonder if Maggie came - after all, somehow, I do not believe she did - but hope she did.
What has become of the "Painter," (as Grace & I call him).? If he and Philip do not go in business together, will he remain in Panama City.?

Do not know what Grace intends her future to be, but if I were her, I believe, I'd get my Grand pa to send me to school, taking music ~~and~~ and dressmaking as a special study. But is all very easy to say, "what I'd do," but I guess when I was seventeen I thought of "going" as much as any one, though possibly did not do as much as some others just because I had a "Mama" to look after me. and then we moved off here, and as now, there are very few that appeal to my fancy. or not my ideas.

I'd like to see Grace, just a few minutes, but guess I can not until I come down to next Club meetings. Darling, do suppose I am old or experienced enough to shoulder the responsibility that is awaiting me?
Papa is caly so good right, Yours Lillian
